

Re: The Light

Source: <http://coding.derkeiler.com/Archive/Assembler/alt.lang.asm/2006-01/msg00790.html>

- From: "o//annabee" <faq@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Wed, 11 Jan 2006 00:35:54 GMT
-

På Wed, 11 Jan 2006 00:05:10 GMT, skrev Jim Carlock <anonymous@xxxxxxxxxx>:

"Betov" <betov@xxxxxxx> wrote:

There is nothing to be proved or disproved. An individual who believes in something that does not exist is mentally diseased. Period. There is nothing to be discussed about.

What is love? Does it exist? Do you believe in love? Do you believe in hate? Is it something you smell, touch, hear, taste, feel or sense? Does it really exist? Or is it something that only exists within your own head? Is hate a punch in the nose? Is love a kiss on the lips? Does a kiss really represent love? Or is the love something that only exists inside your head?

Love is a container word, an abstraction of all of the named feelings. Love itself does not exist as a real phenomina. Its just a label.

Take a moment and offer love without hate. Offer understanding when you fail to understand. Offer kindness when everything around you offers you pain. Smile and feel good about the things you do. Can you offer anything that puts a smile on everyone's face?

:))) Can I have some of that? Expensive shit I gather. I ran out.

If you die, did you ever exist? And if you did exist, what will the people remember you by and what will you remember?

Smile. Because you can. You live. Enjoy.

Re: The Light

Now, for the proof that something exists even though there's nothing there...

Define a complete vacuum or empty space. They exist, but you never will experience them. The moment you experience one, they are no longer empty space.

Now, the definition of everything... the complete globula of all matter, all energy, all time, all potential, all... it surrounds us and engulfs us, touches us and is apart of us, we are a part of it. It exists. Think about it. It exists. It lives and talks, it smiles and walks, it moves sideways, forwards and backwards. It is everything. It definitely exists. Touch it, feel it, taste it, love it, hate it, smile at it, frown at it. It exists. Its name is God. You are a part of it and it is a part of you, whether you believe in it or not.

Smile. Because you can. You live. Enjoy.

:))) Much funny post. I like it.

Jim Carlock
Post replies to the newsgroup.