

Re: Just for fun ...

Source: <http://coding.derkeiler.com/Archive/Delphi/borland.public.delphi.non-technical/2003-10/2681.html>

---

From: Dave Keighan (SpamTrap_keighand_at_yahoo.com)

Date: 10/09/03

Date: 8 Oct 2003 21:54:10 -0700

Ed

> Here's that artical:

>

> <http://community.borland.com/article/0,1410,26146,00.html>

Kudos to you.

As a Delhi newbie (relatively) and programming hobbyist – I think it's an '??aholic' thingy of some sort. I'd be very interested in any articles you've written related to:

- (1) OOP, as `_you_` learned it, from the "one member who understood good OOP".
- (2) The "great thread about programming tips" if anyone can find it.
- (3) Structure – just about anything.

If you haven't written any articles then, IMHO, you most definitely should. I enjoy reading your posts.

I've only recently broken from my usual 'lurker' status (sheesh, it's almost two years now) and started to ask questions if a thread of interest presents a point or two that I don't understand. I'm still working on the basics – writing Delphi code, reading, lurking & learning. The questions I've posed have provided me with some excellent learning from equally excellent people who (you just know) are spending a considerable amount of their own time preparing and providing responses. The FUD/slash threads get depressing after a while but you get into a bit of interesting banter on some point you don't understand and it all just fades away – reading the article you posed had the same effect.

Thanx

--

Dave Keighan

"The only stupid question is one that is never asked."