Dear all,

We're having some trouble with a Delphi 6 app that sometimes just disappears without a trace. It happens within a timespan of typically 30 to 60 hours of continuous uptime. It's a heavily multithreaded system, but all threads are internally exception-safed (basically, a catch-all try-except block in the TThread.Execute method, which should report the occurrence and nature of any exception to a log file), so I'm rather at a loss to explain why we cannot see any kind of error message at all. We use no third party components or DLL's.

I'm wondering whether there's a knowledge base somewhere specifically oriented toward grave application crash symptoms and their causes. Or if you have experienced a similar situation and found the cause, it would be helpful if you would share your story for me and others to possibly learn from.

thanks!

Kristofer
