I understand that you're not a full time conventional employee, but surely you get compensation for the work you do as a Regional Director? How does that work?

I'm not an employee in any regard – see my other post or look in a search engine. RD's are kind of like MVP's (which are kind of like TeamB). But there are about 10,000 MVP's IIRC, and only 129 RD's. We aren't paid in any way unless we do contracts for MS, but in such a case MS is a customer just like anyone else and that's independent of being an RD.
