

Re: Odd problem

Source:

<http://coding.derkeiler.com/Archive/Delphi/borland.public.delphi.thirdpartytools.general/2005-02/0559.html>

---

From: Nils Haeck (n.haeckno_at_spamchello.nl)

Date: 02/14/05

Date: Mon, 14 Feb 2005 15:59:37 +0100

This sounds like an initialization problem in the component. Perhaps it initializes something and forgets to finalize it, so on next launch it tries to initialize a thing that is already initialized, something along that line.

I would argue it's an issue to 9.0.18 specifically, so I'd go back to 9.0.14 and wait until there's a stable version out.

Nils

"Liz" <liz_wants_no_spam@xcalibur.nospam.co.uk> wrote in message news:420dfc27@newsgroups.borland.com...

- > I know there are indy groups but my newsreader keeps getting connection
- > refused, and Im not really sure its an Indy issue this one.
- >
- > I had 9.0.14, I tried to upgrade to 9.0.17 but ran into some bugs, so
- > reverted to 9.0.14.. I then spotted theres a 9.0.18.. downloaded etc..
- >
- > I removed the packages, I deleted the dcl and dcp files, removed the
- > dcus, recompiled, no errors, install.. and I get..
- >
- > Access violation at address 7C901010 in module ntdll.dll read of
- > address 0000001C
- >
- > I originally had castalia and a whole bunch of other stuff installed,
- > when I did this then, I got an Exception code of C0000006.
- >
- > Only things that have changed other than that was the stupid MS
- > patches..
- >
- > Dumb part is, if I close delphi, and "add" the bpl which has correctly
- > been copied into the projects/bpl directory, the indy components appear
- > and work correctly, until next time I open delphi.