

Re: TImage and GrayScale

Source: <http://coding.derkeiler.com/Archive/Delphi/comp.lang.pascal.delphi.misc/2004-10/0118.html>

---

From: J French (erewhon\_at\_nowhere.com)

Date: 10/05/04

Date: Tue, 5 Oct 2004 07:14:49 +0000 (UTC)

On Mon, 4 Oct 2004 21:37:23 +0200, "Daniel Hjerholm"
<hjerth@frisurf.no> wrote:

>> Have you tried setting GrayScale to True /after/ you have assigned the >> Image ?
>>
>
>Yes, that didn't work either :(

This is what the Delphi Help files say:

<snip>

Use GrayScale for reading in and writing out, that is, for decompressing and compressing, a JPEG image. This property affects how the image is displayed.

</snip>

It suggests to me that GrayScale controls what is read in or written out

Maybe try shunting the JPEG out to a stream and then reading it back in again