3 years ago, a customer asked me whether I could help him read the data in one MCU. I asked why. He said he wanted to illegally copy it. My answer's "get out of here." So, I think if someone asks how to read data in one chip at here, at least he should explain first.

Following your signature, I used that "reply" link this time. But Google didn't say that, right? Your signature doesn't make sense.
