

Re: what does "serialization" mean?

Source: <http://coding.derkeiler.com/Archive/General/comp.programming/2004-06/1368.html>

From: Polyglot (denisNOSPAMfree_at_msn.com)

Date: 06/24/04

Date: Thu, 24 Jun 2004 09:41:47 +1000

It is a well known fact that 80% of flames are caused by incorrect statistics. The other 20% are caused by top posting.

"Corey Murtagh" <emonk@slingshot.no.uce> wrote in message news:1088031594.10854@radsrv1.tranzpeer.net...

> Edward G. Nilges wrote:

> > Programmer Dude <Chris@Sonnack.com> wrote in message news:<9vshd01eu4nra04aemjkb9fpl747oio9@4ax.com>...

> >

> > > Edward G. Nilges writes:

> > >

[snip]

> > Part of the reason for the 80% failure rate of enterprise systems is little circles and groups with their own private language.

>

> Ah, nostalgia. Has anyone kept a list of the hundreds of things that eddie has claimed are responsible (in part or in full) for that mythical 80% failure rate?

>

> <snip>

> > I am well aware, however, that because you don't understand OOD (as evidenced by your advising a newbie to use the Set statement in VB.Net), your goal is to filibuster, troll and disrupt this discussion lest your limitations as a developer emerge.

>

> How exactly does not knowing the difference between VB and VB.NET relate to lack of understanding of OOD? I submit that it is completely unrelated, and that this is yet another of eddie's badly-formed ad hominem attacks.

>

> --

> Corey Murtagh

> The Electric Monk

> "Quidquid latine dictum sit, altum viditur!"