

Re: A note on computing thugs and coding bums

Source: <http://coding.derkeiler.com/Archive/General/comp.programming/2008-01/msg00549.html>

- From: spinoza1111 <spinoza1111@xxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 12 Jan 2008 21:42:41 -0800 (PST)
-

On Jan 13, 5:21 am, Chris McDonald <ch...@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

spinoza1111 <spinoza1...@xxxxxxxx> writes:

You can leave. You can get the fuck out of here. People are speaking up against the Fascist dictatorship this newsgroup has become,

Thank you for the perfect characterization of your attitude to anyone who disagrees with you.

– You have no additional rights here.

No, I don't. But I do have the right to post a thread which has in fact generated interesting discussion without that thread being vandalized – You make no useful contribution here.

I believe I do, unless this group is supposed to be some sort of "resource" for people who don't think – You have no supporters here.

This is a common claim of the childish bully. Get this, pal. People who think in terms of "supporters" and "bullies" have long turned these newsgroups into gladiatorial contests as opposed to discussion forums because entirely too many people who enter here have been brutalized by the objective conditions of their miserable lives.

– Your sociological rants are completely irrelevant to our newsgroup.

Re: A note on computing thugs and coding bums

...as if programming wasn't ever a group effort? Bullshit.

Please, take your own advice.

--

Chris.

.