

Re: User Authentication using Sockets !

Source: <http://coding.derkeiler.com/Archive/Java/comp.lang.java.programmer/2004-01/1546.html>

From: Bryan Bullard (the_bullardsREMOVETHIS_at_sbcglobal.net)

Date: 01/12/04

Date: Mon, 12 Jan 2004 16:57:26 GMT

"Nachhu" <nachhus@yahoo.com> wrote in message news:b38955c1.0401120831.2fcfe818@posting.google.com...

what authentication scheme will you be using?

-bryan

> Hi All !
> Dunno if this post belongs to this group, but didn't see any dedicated > to Java Networking ?
>
> Q:
> Can anybody lead me to any docs or ex. which would show serverside > authentication with using sockets.
>
> Goal:
> *I will have to transfer my archived .war to multiple HTTP servers( > Running on AIX boxes) in our ND Websphere env.
>
> I do have the option of doing FTP, but since FTP is at user level and > our passwds on the boxes age out that option is not possible.
>
> Next option would be to use sockets and transfer the file across.
> However the problem is security. If I have listeners on my boxes > anybody can push almost anything over. I need some kind of security not > more for encrypting the data but more as for user authentication. The > most I can do by using a simple socket/serversocket is to see which > host is connecting over to the box ..
>
> If any of you folks could show the right direction would be very > helpful.
> TIA
>
> NS.