

Re: how can I put jsp files with html files

Source: <http://coding.derkeiler.com/Archive/Java/comp.lang.java.programmer/2004-02/0866.html>

---

From: Justin Mencl (jutmencl12\_at\_hotmail.com)

Date: 02/08/04

Date: 7 Feb 2004 21:43:03 -0800

Sudsy <bitbucket44@hotmail.com> wrote in message news:<402566D7.4070100@hotmail.com>...

> Justin Mencl wrote:

> > I have a RH9 machine running Apache2 and Tomcat 4 with mod_jk.so as a > > connector. The configuration is running perfectly except for one > > little nuisance. Apache is serving from /var/www/html and Tomcat is > > serving from /usr/local/tomcat/webapps/'app/'. The connection between > > works great for servlets. And the connection works for JSP pages when > > the JSP pages are in the Tomcat directory. I would like to have the

> > JSP pages located with the rest of the HTML files at /var/www/html.

> >

> > Is there a way to get JSP files in /var/www/html to be served through

> > Apache to Tomcat? Is there a classBase Context param in Tomcats > > server.xml I can use?

>

> This is handled automagically. My mod_jk.conf file is included in the

> Apache httpd.conf file and forwards all .jsp and .do requests to > Tomcat. It's a fairly standard configuration, BTW.

Thanks for the response.

Yes, my apache config will pass JSP requests to Tomcat, but Tomcat will only look in the webapps/ directories for the requests. It will not look outside to other directories. My question still stands, but rephrased:

Is there a way to get Tomcat to server JSP pages located outside the webapps/ directory?

Again, TIA

Justin Mencl