

Re: Building a linked list

---

Source: <http://coding.derkeiler.com/Archive/Java/comp.lang.java.programmer/2007-09/msg01873.html>

---

- From: bbound@xxxxxxxxxx
  - Date: Sat, 22 Sep 2007 07:03:58 -0000
-

On Sep 21, 10:28 pm, "John W. Kennedy" <jwke...@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

bbo...@xxxxxxxxxx wrote:

On Sep 21, 11:44 am, Lew <l...@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:
[a whole bunch of stuff liberally laced with insults]

The term is hardly "common" or I'd surely have run across it before.

You think very highly of yourself, don't you?

What I said just follows from the definition of "common" and the fact that I've been alive for several decades and using the net for more than one and a half.

And it's plainly not English; looks French or perhaps Spanish, Latin, or one of those.

French? French?! I suppose you also think that the theme from "CSI: Miami" is by the Beatles.

Of course not, it's obviously by the Who.

It's Italian, of course, and a well established denizen of American English.

Italian is basically what Latin, which I mentioned, became, and it is clearly not a well established denizen of English as normally used anywhere I normally go or, as I said before, I'd have seen it before.

Anyway why has my original humorous comment turned into a huge debate?

Re: Building a linked list

Oh yeah, because that asshole Lew feels an obsessive need to follow up to anything I write with an attempt to denigrate me, that's why. :P

.