

Re: SwingWorker.execute() does nothing

Source: <http://coding.derkeiler.com/Archive/Java/comp.lang.java.programmer/2008-10/msg00792.html>

- From: Ben Phillips <b.phillips@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Thu, 09 Oct 2008 05:20:23 -0400
-

Peter Duniho wrote:

No, wait a minute, you were not supposed to reply. Please stop doing so. This thread is closed. I, its author, have solved my original problem and no longer derive any benefit from it. So you are violating the newsgroup charter by posting to it. All such posts, after all, are automatically off-topic and a waste of bandwidth.

So, it's okay to be disrespectful to people as long as you do it behind their back?

I wasn't.

Of course you were.

Oh, really? Then name the person I supposedly disrespected.

Too bad. I don't buy that logic. Disrespectful is disrespectful, and whether the person you were disrespecting was here to read your post or not, your comment was still "unconstructive material".

So, in your estimation, two wrongs make a right?

No. My reply was in defense of a person wronged.

The only person wronged here is me.

The defense of a person wronged is a right.

The attack of another person is not.

Re: SwingWorker.execute() does nothing

You could have said "I don't think that guy, whoever he is, was actually a bonehead" and left it at that. But you didn't. You also opened up on me with both barrels, which is not good. Not good at all.

Don't tell other people what to do. You have no authority here.

[personal attack]