

Re: Fatal error: Function name must be a string

---

Source: <http://coding.derkeiler.com/Archive/PHP/alt.php/2005-09/msg00289.html>

---

- From: "Steve" <googlespam@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: 22 Sep 2005 03:12:15 -0700
-

```
> > 06: if ($rpool{'pgod'}<=$godina and $rpool('kgod')>=$godina){
>
> OK, but isn't " $rpool{'pgod'}" a syntax error; shouldn't it be "
> $rpool('pgod') "?
```

Maybe in some other language, but in PHP we use square brackets for array indices, thus:

```
if( ( $rpool['pgod'] <= $godina ) and ( $rpool['kgod'] >= $godina )
) ...
```

---

Steve

.

---

- Follow-Ups:
  - ◆ Re: Fatal error: Function name must be a string
    - ◇ From: Zeljko A.

- References:
  - ◆ Fatal error: Function name must be a string
    - ◇ From: sentinel
  - ◆ Re: Fatal error: Function name must be a string
    - ◇ From: Zeljko A.
  - ◆ Re: Fatal error: Function name must be a string
    - ◇ From: sentinel
  - ◆ Re: Fatal error: Function name must be a string
    - ◇ From: Zeljko A.

- Prev by Date: Re: Fatal error: Function name must be a string
- Next by Date: Re: Basic PHP question...
- Previous by thread: Re: Fatal error: Function name must be a string
- Next by thread: Re: Fatal error: Function name must be a string
- Index(es):

Re: Fatal error: Function name must be a string

- ◆ Date
- ◆ Thread