

php.general: Re: [PHP] related products, how to's best practices

Re: [PHP] related products, how to's best practices

Source: <http://coding.derkeiler.com/Archive/PHP/php.general/2003-12/0446.html>

---

From: Matt Matijevich (matijevich_at_alliancetechnologies.net)

Date: 12/04/03

Date: Thu, 04 Dec 2003 09:57:30 -0600

To: <php-general@lists.php.net>

** Low Priority ****

<snip>

>>> Jon Bennett <flashcoder@jben.net> 12/4/2003 9:43:53 AM >>>

Would I be right in thinking that php alone can't change the content of a dropdown once the browser has loaded the file without a page refresh

??? In which case I need to source out some javascript, anyone got anything that might help me (code, tute, urls etc) as I'm not having much luck with google ??

</snip>

Try the hidden iframe method. I have used it in a couple projects and it works great

<http://developer.apple.com/internet/javascript/iframe.html>