6th attempt: please include (properly trimmed down to the bare necessary minimum) quotes of the relevant material you're replying to!!! (especially taking into account your claims about etiquette – that begin to sound ridicule!)

HUH?!? He made a joke, but once again it seems to me that you're really attributing to others your own faults for nobody but YOU let his own temper get the best of himself...

OK!

It would have been, had you the care of reading those docs.

And if you did read them as you've repeatedly claimed (but I find it hard to believe!) then you should have pointed so in the first place, and you should have pointed out what you find so hard to understand about them, too, so that somebody could have provided useful comments on those particular issues.

(I) Technically "these groups" (which ones? As far as I can see you're only posting to clpmisc) are NOT "a forum". (II) It has NEVER "been DejaNews", just as much as now it is NOT "Google".

Claims like these tend to strenghten the impression you've not the smallest clue about what you're talking about and together with the arrogant tone you're bringing them in give them impression you're trying to do the best to make a fool of yourself...
