

Re: templating system

Source: <http://coding.derkeiler.com/Archive/Python/comp.lang.python/2005-04/msg02211.html>

- From: Ksenia Marasanova <ksenia.marasanova@xxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Wed, 13 Apr 2005 22:24:50 +0200
-

On 4/13/05, James Carroll <mrmapple@xxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

> I've had fantastic results with SimpleTAL
> <http://www.owlfish.com/software/simpleTAL/>
>
> It uses the Zope Page Templates style markups (which are wysiwyg in > dreamweaver) and then pulls contents from python functions and > 'contexts' very nicely. Your example would look something like:
>
>
>
> <A href="www.yahoo.com" tal:attribute="href > string:http://imdb.com?search=\${record/title}
> tal:content=record/title>record title goes here
>

ZPT looks nice, but it can't produce non-markup text, right?
Besides that, I find it hard to read... it is kind of extra mental step to translate "repeat="record records" into "for record in records" :) But it is matter of taste of course.

==
Ksenia

±

- Prev by Date: Re: PyChart into web site error
- Next by Date: Re: PyChart into web site error
- Previous by thread: Re: templating system
- Next by thread: numarray.array can be VERY slow
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread