Good job. Wouldn't call it "advanced" yet.

You are welcome to help... I'd appreciate that!

No way to change the font
size,

This can currently be done with the tloona.rc file in your home directory. Search for a line that specifies the font and font size and edit it to your needs.

There will be a dialog for these kind of things, when I have time and want to do it... or when anybody else likes to do that before me.

errors (file->new, click in the empty window, get 'Error: Invalid command name ""').

I know. I don't use the File->new very often so this bug is embarrassing old ;-). You can create a new file like this, then save it and immediately close it. Then reopen it and everything is fine. Or "touch" the file in your filesystem and then open it in Tloona.

Of course, no way to print the source code and no way to implement it either, since, as far as I know, TK doesn't support printing.

As said above, you are welcome to implement this if you need it. I won't, because I don't need it (as of now).
